DISPOSAL OF WASTE COOKING OIL

When oil is poured down sinks or drains it can cause blockages, which is an offence under Section 111 of the water Industry. Oil cans placed in the dustbin can be dangerous for the refuse collectors and should be collected by a licensed carrier.

USED COOKING OIL MUST BE REMOVED IN A RESPONSIBLE MANNER

Waste cooking oil can be recycled into bio diesel, animal feeds, detergents, cosmetics, plastics and moulds. The companies usually require about 5 x 20 litre drums and will collect about every 2 weeks. Before oil is collected you should store it in containers, which do not leak, keep them covered and keep the surrounding area clean.

If you find your premise is not producing enough waste oil for a regular collection, then maybe you could join with other nearby food establishments to arrange a joint collection.

The following list of companies will collect your waste oil - some will even pay you for it!
